

PLUCKY HEROINE FACES A BURGLAR.

Mrs. Merriman the Third Woman to Bring a Criminal to Grief.

THREE NEW YORK HEROINES.

MRS. PRYOR. Frustrated murderer-footpad and chased him into arms of policeman.

MRS. MERRIMAN. Pluckily heard a burglar and gave alarm which led to his capture.

MRS. PATTERSON. Held off an elevated station "hold-up" after he had struck her, and drove him away.

Residents of upper Fifth avenue and Millionaires' Row in West Fifty-first street will breathe freer since the capture this morning of William Lindow, a "second-story" man, who only recently was released from Sing Sing after serving an eight years' sentence for burglary.

Coincident with Lindow's return from the penitentiary the police of the East Fifty-first street station received many complaints of robberies.

Capt. Lantry assigned several of his "plain clothes" men to patrol the district between Fifth and Sixth streets and Fifth avenue and the adjoining streets between the hours of 10 P. M. and 5 A. M. Their vigilance was rewarded before daybreak by the arrest of Lindow.

Armed with a long dirk-knife and a burglar's "jimmy," Lindow invaded the home of William Hemmway, a millionaire silk merchant, at 8 West Fifty-first street, some time after midnight.

On the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street, is the residence of William Hemmway. The house faces on the side street and a low stone wall runs along the Fifth avenue side. Lindow climbed over this wall, then climbing the back fence of the residence of E. C. Benedet, the millionaire broker and yachtsman, finally landing in the rear yard of the Hemmway house.

He used his "jimmy" and pried off one of the iron guard bars of the kitchen window, which is in the basement. Through an aperture of less than a foot the burglar squeezed. A servant's trunk was in the kitchen, and he rifled it.

"WHY MY HUSBAND TURNED ROBBER."

Poverty and Love for Her, Wife Says, Drove Mrs. Pryor's Assailant Mad.

Patrick Hynes, who murderously attacked ex-Judge Pryor's plucky daughter-in-law, has a history.

It is a pitiful history of affliction, want and misfortune. His acquaintances say they believe misery turned his brain.

An Evening World reporter called today at 78 Third avenue, the address given by Hynes.

The janitor said Hynes had no apartment there, but referred the inquirer to a friend named Molloy, who lives on the fourth floor.

Molloy said:

"Since last Saturday night I have been keeping Hynes and his wife. He is a laborer by trade and has been unable to get work for some time past. Unable to pay their room rent, they were evicted last Saturday.

"Two years ago Hynes fell from a scaffold. Ever since I think his mind has been unbalanced."

To The Evening World Mrs. Hynes dictated the pathetic statement that follows:

HOW WANT MADDENED HIM.

BY MRS. PATRICK HYNES.

It was poverty of the sternest kind that made him do this thing. It was poverty and his love for me.

I am about to become a mother, and my husband was nearly wild because he could not provide properly for me.

I wanted to go to the Margaret Street Home, in West Twenty-seventh street, but he said no. He wanted to be near me. He said he loved me, and that at such a time he would not let himself be kept away.

Want Broke Up Home.

"Something would happen," he said, "so as it is, something has happened, but it isn't fixed it right."

I am twenty-four years old and was born in England. I married Patrick six years ago, and we had a neat little home at 205 Second avenue. Patrick worked nearly every day in the week, and with $10 or $12 weekly we lived nicely.

Then hard times came. He didn't get much work. A year ago we had to break up our home and sell the biggest part of our furniture to pay the back rent.

We had a hard time in the past year. I kept getting worse.

Patrick didn't drink, and was always kind and pleasant.

We moved about from place to place, getting cheaper rooms. Three weeks ago he borrowed $4 from a friend and we paid two weeks' rent for a little room at 321 East Forty-first street. Up to this time I had been able to work about, earning a little money, but now I cannot.

Had $2 a Week.

My husband got two half days' work at building and earned about $2. This was for nearly two weeks for food. One week ago last Sunday to a week ago last Wednesday I lay in the room sick without a morsel to eat and he didn't care.

When he came in and would cry like a woman, I saw me. I could not get up. On Wednesday my friend brought me some food.

Thursday my husband earned 30

Making his way to the second floor he found himself in the dining room. He was packing away the Hemmway family plate when he movements aroused Mrs. Merriman, an aged sister of the silk merchant. Thinking her brother was up and preparing to go out for his usual morning horseback ride, she arose and went into the hallway, intending to counsel him against going out in the cold.

"Is that you, Homer?" she called out. The noise in the dining room ceased immediately. There was no response.

Mrs. Merriman, standing at the top of her voice, Mr. Hemmway and the servants came tumbling into the hallway. In the semi-darkness they saw the crouching figure of a man slipping along the wall toward the front door. He gained it and dashed into the street.

Special Watchman Henry Miller, of a private detective agency, saw the man dart out of the house and gave chase. He drew his revolver and called to the man to halt, but the burglar ran all the harder. Then Miller ripped with his lighted torch. Detective Westlauffer and Hellawell, part of Capt. Lantry's burglar squad, responded, and turned in upon Sixth avenue and came to head Lindow into the Sixth avenue car barn, where he was captured.

On May 21, 1900, Lindow, under the name of William Smith, with George Wagner, brother-in-law of the home of J. M. Tracy, at 111 East Fifty-second street, and got $15 in cash. On account of his having been a midnight burglar, Judge Cowing gave them eight years each in Sing Sing.

Going back over the route of the fleeing burglar, the detectives found two gold rings, a red chain and two gold collar buttons in the area way of West Fifty-first street. In No. 8 West Fifty-first street, a silver ring and several gold cuff links. In his pockets were found a silver-backed hat brush, a gold watch and several trawlers, and $1 in cash. The police give Lindow the reputation of being a desperate thief.

GIRL ACCUSES A POLICEMAN.

Father Says His Complaint to Inspector Was Useless.

Charged with kissing and hugging a fourteen-year-old girl, Policeman Martin Sullivan, of the Central Park Squad, was on trial today before Commissioner Hays.

Ellen E. Daly is a rosy-cheeked young girl, mature for her years. She lives with her father at 220 West Sixty-first street. At 6:30 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 5 she was sent to the bathhouse.

In the doorway of the big doorway of a public school at Fifty-eighth street, near Fourth avenue, she says she encountered Policeman Sullivan. He spoke to her, having met her at the home of John Dineen on New Year's Day.

"Well, give me a kiss before you go," said the policeman after he had inquired after his friends. Nellie refused and then she says the policeman lifted her into the doorway and kissed her several times. "Meet me in Central Park at 5 o'clock tomorrow," she declares he said at parting.

W. F. Daly told how his daughter had returned home in tears. He went to Inspector Donald Grant. That official examined the girl, excluding the father, and then refused to entertain the charges.

Daly appealed to the Board. He told how the Dineens and others had sought him to drop the charges. Sullivan said in his own defense that he had left the Arsenal in Central Park with Policeman O'Neil shortly after 6 o'clock and remained at home the rest of the night. Commissioner Hays referred the case to the full Board.

ITALY'S CONSUL RAISES DISPUTE

Claims Right to Administer Estate Without Security.

Surrogate Thomas laid down the decision that a foreign Consul General, while having the right to intervene in administrative proceedings in this country, can do so only when the Public Administrator has declined to interfere. And he said the Consul must give the same security for the performance of his duties as would be required of the administrator.

The decision was rendered on the application of the Consul-General of Italy for letters of administration upon the estate of Giuseppe Logoratto, sometimes known as Joseph Gerardo. He died in 1900, leaving personal property to a small amount. He was a citizen of Italy.

Surrogate Thomas in granting the application says he does so on the ground that no relative or guardian of a minor relative, and no creditor or public administrator will consent to become administrator, and the petitioner is a legally competent person to act as such. He is unwilling, he adds, to base his conclusion on the reasoning in the case cited or to adopt it as a precedent.

As soon as this action was taken, John H. Kampe, the Secretary, resigned.

Vice-President Joseph E. Scully, the City Clerk of New York, said to an Evening World reporter that he could not say just why Mr. Lewis had been suspended.

After an all-night session the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce and Local Association, one of the largest of its kind in Brooklyn, has temporarily suspended its president, Thomas F. Lewis.

The association has a capital of $3,000. Its directors met at 8 o'clock last night. It was evident that they expected trouble, for they demanded and obtained a squad of police for protection in case of disturbance.

What took place at the meeting is a mystery. None of the directors would talk. It became known, however, that toward the close of the session early this morning the President had been suspended.

The Wanamaker Store The FURNITURE You Want

Nothing fanciful, no curios, no mistakes or old patterns. Bright, fresh, new, perfect goods, such as you would pick out at full prices in a regular way.

That is what is offered in this

FEBRUARY FURNITURE SALE

THE showing of special priced goods is as broad and complete as it was on the First of February. Carload after carload has been coming, and the furniture has been brought forward as fast as earlier lots made way for it.

This morning the floors are covered with stocks as ample and tempting as when the sale started. One purchase in particular helps to this fulness. One big factory's entire stock of $60,000 worth of goods was bought at a handsome reduction because the firm was retiring from business. We gave quick outlet, and got concessions accordingly.

The larger part of these goods has just arrived, and is mainly bedroom furniture. There are beautiful styles of Chiffoniers, Toilet Tables and Bureaus. Also from this same firm came Sideboards, China Closets and Bookcases. All are new goods, manufactured for this season.

All worth a half more than to-day's prices.

Here are price-suggestions from all over the floor:
